FOREWORD

The ability to read is the opening wedge to all printed knowledge. When a child, himself, seeks help through books or is inspired to explore ideas which will spark his imagination beyond his present status, he is on the way to success. It is our opportunity to supply this guidance and inspiration and direct the growth of the children who are in our charge.

This bulletin has been designed with the hope that it can serve as a guide to present and future teachers of visually handicapped children. Its purpose may be stated as threefold.

1. The teachers who produced this study have done so for their own benefit. It has given them an opportunity to reappraise their philosophy and redirect their efforts.

2. There is much in these pages that will be of value to new teachers who will appear on the scene in coming years. It is hoped that the suggestions here will help them to do an efficient job for our boys and girls.

3. The teachers of visually handicapped children throughout America are scattered and do not have much opportunity for communication with one another. The statements on these pages should be of some value to teachers everywhere in appraising their own efforts.

In many respects this appears to be a course of study, but it is less formal than the typical course of study because of the effort to adapt the public school requirements to the needs of the visually handicapped boys and girls. With this approach, it could well be called "an adaptation of the course of study to the needs of visually handicapped children."

The philosophy and practices of a school for the blind are inexorably linked to the philosophy of the public school systems of America. The education of visually handicapped children must follow the pattern that has been established for the education of sighted children. The methods may vary, but the initial philosophy and ultimate goals are essentially unchanged. In recognition of this situation, the teachers who prepared this study began with an analysis of the objectives of the public school system of North Carolina, and from this point proceeded to adapt the work of the School for the Blind to the development of their boys and girls.

Egbert N. Peeler, Superintendent

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

This study is a product of the teachers of the North Carolina School for the Blind. Most of these teachers bring a rich background of training and experience to their work. A majority of them had experience as teachers in the public school system before joining the staff of the School for the Blind. Grateful acknowledgment is made for their sincere efforts to prepare this statement of what they consider to be their opportunity in the field of reading.

A deep sense of appreciation is expressed to Mr. T. E. Stough, former Principal of the State School for the Blind, for his assistance in codifying, summarizing, and appraising the writings of the several teachers. For general editorial services, we express our thanks to Mrs. Rachel Rawls, Mrs. Hazeline Whitley, Samuel J. Cole, and Randall K. Harley.

The teachers who participated in the preparation of this study are as follows:

Kindergarten
Mrs. Catherleen Thomas
Miss Gloria Lester
Miss Agnes Ellis
Mrs. Doris Holt
Mrs. Ann Harris

1st Grade
Miss Mozelle Jones
Mrs. Evelyn Harthcock
Mrs. Lucile Hunt
Miss Ida Pearle Eatmon

THE TEACHING OF READING

TO

VISUALLY HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

KINDERGARTEN READINESS AND READING

I. OBJECTIVES OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

A. General Objectives (for Primary Grades).

1. To encourage the desire to read.
2. To develop a thoughtful attitude toward reading.
3. To work toward independence and accuracy in word recognition.
4. To help achieve effective oral and silent reading habits.
5. To work to extend the span of recognition and increase the rate of reading.
6. To help the child attain rhythmic eye movements.
7. To develop the ability to comprehend and interpret reading material accurately.
8. To develop care in handling books.
9. To cultivate reading tastes and standards through wide reading experiences.

B. Specific Objectives.
(Not Available).

II. OBJECTIVES OF THE SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND.

A. General Objectives.
Same as for the public schools except in number six, Add the words "Finger and Hand" to the word "Eye."

B. Specific Objectives.
1. To orientate each child to his new environment in and out of the classroom.
2. To establish a feeling of friendliness toward the people in the school.
3. To project the child's home life interests into his social life.
4. To help the child overcome blindisms (rocking, shaking head, hands and feet, moving fingers in front of eyes, etc.)
5. To develop good speech habits, giving special help with speech defects.
6. To develop the habit of listening carefully.
7. To develop keen auditory discrimination.
8. To follow three or four simple directions.
9. To dramatize simple stories.
10. To develop tactual discrimination.
11. To establish good reading techniques (posture, hand and arm movement, reading without lip movement, etc.)
12. To comprehend words, phrases, and sentences in easy reading.
13. To read both orally and silently in thought units.
14. To answer fact questions on material read previously.
15. To use context clues.
16. To increase independence in attacking new words.
17. To use books effectively (titles, tables of contents, page numbers, etc.)
18. To read fluently, at touch, any of the easier selections.

NOTE:

The first year of instruction at the North Carolina School for the Blind is called "Kindergarten." Most of the children enter at the age of six. All of the children participate in reading readiness activities at the beginning of the year. A majority of them progress from reading readiness activities into a program of reading of pre-primers and primers, completing from seven to fourteen pre-primers, two to three primers before going to the first grade. A few children may advance through a series of first grade readers and be promoted to the second grade.

III. PROCEDURES AND EXPERIENCES.

A. Orientation (especially for the new teacher.)
   1. Record each child's name, age, birthday, likes and dislikes, pets, etc.
   2. Record each child's family, names of brothers and sisters, occupations of parents, church relations, residence (country or town,) etc.
   3. Tour the school campus. (These trips should be made when the persons in charge are available.)
      a. Visit dining rooms, infirmary, gymnasium, shops, heating plant, cold storage, superintendent's office, and storage quarters.
      b. Arrange a trip to the library, school museum, principal's office, auditorium, arts and crafts.
   4. Take a bus trip through the city of Raleigh, pointing out and discussing points of interest along the way.
   5. Practice moving around in the classroom independently.

B. Reading Readiness
   1. Developing motor skills.
      a. Activities to develop controlled coordination in rhythmic movements.
         (1) Games.
         (2) Dances.
      b. Activities to develop finger coordination.
         (1) Large free-hand movements.
            (a) Clay, large crayons, finger paints.
            (b) Building with large blocks, logs, boards, etc.
         (2) Finger movements.
            (a) Putting pegs in boards, stringing large and small beads.
            (b) Examining, classifying, sorting, assembling, and matching objects (educational toys.)
   2. Developing oral language.
      a. Tell about trip to school, back home, cottage life, and bus trip.
      b. Tell old and new stories.
      c. Memorize and tell nursery rhymes, poems, and finger plays.
      d. Dramatize a play or favorite story for assembly or classroom program.
      e. Play games to demonstrate each of the following terms: loud and soft, high and low, fast and slow, left and right, top and bottom, up and down, over and under, above and below, in and out.
      f. Identify rhyming words in Mother Goose rhymes and other poems.
      g. Use speech and story tapes in library.

3. Developing perception skills.
   a. Developing tactual discrimination.
      (visual discrimination when possible.)
      (1) Use concrete objects (blocks, knives, forks, spoons, cars, boats, and various toys,) felt and sandpaper designs pasted to paper, and Braille dots.
      (2) Distinguish between different textures (fuzzy yarn, smooth glass, soft fur, rubber, different grades of sandpaper, etc.)
      (3) Distinguish between square, circle, and triangle through the use of balls, boxes, coins, etc.
      (4) Distinguish between likenesses and differences.
         (a) Compare two like or two unlike objects.
         (b) Choose two similar objects in a group of four.
         (c) Show an object. Find one among four different objects like the one shown.
         (d) Find one of four objects unlike the others.
      (5) Make tracks of Braille dots across page and teach child to follow the line with the index finger, moving over the dots lightly from the left side to the right. He must not stop to examine each dot.
      (6) Make groups of dots to teach likenesses and differences. Follow same procedure used with others.
      (7) Use TOUCH AND TELL books if available.
   b. Developing auditory discrimination.
      (1) Listening to different sounds.
         (a) High and low.
         (b) Fast and slow.
         (c) Near and far.
         (d) Guessing voices of classmates.
      (2) Listening to find out facts and to answer questions.
      (3) Listening to follow directions.
         (a) To carry out aditivies and responsibilities in the classroom.
         (b) To be able to go to cottage, auditorium, gymnasium, principal's and superintendent's offices, infirmary, music department, and student store.
         (c) To play games involving listening and following directions such as "Simon Says."
   c. Developing concepts.
      (1) Have children put an object on, under, in, beside, below, above, behind, and over a box.
      (2) Have children walk slowly, fast, quietly, noisily, quickly.
      (3) Practice finding top and bottom of books and also the middle and side or edge.
      (4) Determine which is playground equipment: slide, sandbox, comb.
      (5) Determine which are clothes: dress, boat, shoes.

3. Developing perception skills.

a. Developing accurate differentiation.

(Visual discrimination when possible.)

(1) Use concrete objects (blocks, balls, toys, cars, horses, dolls, toy vehicles, etc.) that are commonly used in play.

(2) Distinguish between different textures (long yarn, rough plant, cut fur, smooth, different grades of sandpaper, etc.)

(3) Distinguish between sounds, words, and tones by the use of bells, horns, whistles, etc.

(4) Distinguish between temperature and differences.

(5) Describe the size or the moving objects.

(a) Describe the relative speed of a group of boys.

(b) Describe the relative speed of two objects.

(c) Show an object. Ask students to describe the objects size (in cm).

(d) Find one of two objects similar in shape.

(6) Have groups of people move at different speeds (walk, skip, run) to hear the time, see the color change, motion over the floor (light), see the flash (light), to feel the wind on the face, to see the shadow.

(7) Make groups of dots or lines (longer or shorter) move. Point out the differences.

(8) Use other sensory stimuli as available.

b. Developing auditory discrimination.

(1) Listening to different sounds.

(a) Stop and go.

(b) Loud and soft.

(c) Near and far.

(d) Changing tempo or intensity.

(2) Listening to full and half tones and to minor changes.

(3) Listening to talking conditions.

(a) In class and outside the classroom.

(b) To be able to be quiet, attentive, problem, personal and conversational situations, listening, music appreciation, and outside sounds.

(c) To play games involving listening and carrying the instructions out as "Simon Says".

c. Developing concepts.

(1) Have children put an object on, under, in, behind, below, above, beside, and near a line.

(2) Have children walk slowly, fast, quiet, loudly, quickly.

(3) Practice finding top and bottom of book and also the middle and side or edge.

(4) Determine which is playground equipment (slide, swings, etc.).

(5) Determine which are playhouse dress, hat, shoes.

C. Pre-primer Reading.
   1. Develop a good oral vocabulary foundation before beginning to read.
   2. Develop correct hand position and movement.
      a. Feel the whole word together, not just the beginning.
      b. Move from left to right.
      c. Avoid up and down movements of the reading finger.
   3. Teach basic Braille vocabulary using words and phrase cards, short sentences, and chart stories. (The student should have a knowledge of fifteen to twenty words before beginning to read in a pre-primer.)
      a. Provide individual word cards or word study sheets.
      b. Check daily progress through the use of chart stories in which all the words that have been studied are used.
   4. Introduce book and characters.
      a. Teach proper care of books.
      b. Locate title page, index, and page numbers.
      c. Show how to turn pages.
   5. Follow the teacher's manual with whatever variation is necessary.
   6. Introduce new words through the use of toys, stuffed animals, dolls, cars, and boats.
   7. Describe the accompanying pictures and let children with vision look at them.
   8. Have children read stories orally in the beginning. As they progress, read one or two lines silently to find answers to questions. When they know and understand enough words, have them read a unit of sentences for the main throught. Teach the children to use context clues.
   9. Dramatize the stories.
   10. Listen to and learn songs and poems about the stories.
   11. Use word and phrase matching cards. (Write a word such as Dick, on an envelope. Have the child insert all the cards into the envelope with the word Dick on them.)
   12. Use work sheets.
      a. Find and mark a specified word, such as run, which is found in a group of words.
      b. Mark the word on each line that is different.
      c. Mark all the color words written on a sheet.
      d. Mark all the number words on a sheet.
      e. Answer simple questions by marking yes or no. (i.e., Is Sally little? .... yes .... no.)
   13. Read supplementary materials made available by the Printing House and those made by the teacher.
   14. Continue work sheets and word drills when necessary.
   15. Read at least seven pre-primers.

D. Primer reading.
   1. Continue the procedure used in the pre-primer program.
   2. Develop silent reading to the point where the child can read an entire story silently with understanding.
   3. Continue word attack skills.
   4. Read at least two primers.

IV. MATERIALS NEEDED.

A. Basal and supplementary readers (PP: 7-14 sets; P: 1-3 sets.)
   1. Pre-primers.
      a. Row. Skip Along, Under the Sky, Open the Door, High on a Hill.
      b. Scott. The New We Look and See, The New We Work and Play, The New We Come and Go.
      c. Ginn. Come with Us, My Little Red Story Book, My Little Green Story Book, My Little Blue Story Book.
      d. Lyons. Three of Us, Play with Us, Fun with Us, Ride with Us.
      e. Heath. Ned and Nancy, Bigger and Bigger, Little Lost Dog, Molly, Pete, and Ginger.
      f. Houghton. Tip, Tip and Mitten, The Big Show.
      g. Scott. Sally, Dick and Jane, Fun with Our Family, Fun Wherever We Are.
   2. Primers.
      a. Row. The New Day In and Day Out, The New Wishing Well, Once Upon a Time.
      b. Scott. The New Fun with Dick and Jane, Guess Who?
      c. Scott. Fun with Our Friends, The New Guess Who?
      d. Ginn. Under the Apple Tree, The Little White House.
      e. Lyons. Many Surprises.
      f. Heath. A Home for Sandy, Rain and Shine.

B. Teaching Aids.
   1. Library Materials.
      a. Dictionary, desk copy.
      b. Encyclopedia.
      c. Books for the teacher.
      d. Models, specimens, objects, etc.
      e. Tapes.
      f. Films.
      g. Records.
      h. Talking books.
   2. Special classroom supplies and equipment.
      a. Pictures.
      b. Charts.
      c. Modeling clay and play dough.
      d. Puzzles (wood and cardboard.)
      e. Flannel board with flannel pictures and designs.
      f. Crayons, paper, pencils, and scissors.
      g. Pegs, peg boards, beads for stringing and snapping together.
      h. Small toys (cars, trucks, boats, trains, telephone, fire engine, jack-in-the box, building blocks, balls.)
      i. Constructo sets.
      j. Shoes for lacing.
      k. Playhouse with furniture.
      l. Housekeeping toys (doll carriage, dolls, stove, dishes, table, chairs, etc.)
      m. Easel, paint, and paint brushes.
      n. Woodworking bench with hammer, nails, saw, vise, empty thread spools.

o. Stuffed animals and musical toys.
p. Tricycles, rocking boats, tractors.

3. Other Resources.
   a. Guide books and manuals.
   b. Braille word and phrase cards.

FIRST GRADE READING

I. OBJECTIVES OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

A. General Objectives.
(See Kindergarten Readiness and Reading)

B. Specific Objectives.

1. Effective eye movements.
2. Increased rate of reading.
3. Increased independence in attacking new words.
4. Reading for the complete thought.
5. Reading independently, for pleasure.
6. Enjoying illustrations.
7. Reading both orally and silently in thought units.
8. Reading aloud clearly and naturally.
9. Reading without finger pointing or lip movement.
10. Comprehending words, phrases, sentences in easy material.
11. Answering fact questions on material in readers.
12. Following three or four simple directions in sequence.
13. Using context and picture clues.
14. Illustrating or dramatizing simple stories.
15. Reading fluently, at sight, any of the easier selections.
16. Using books and other printed materials efficiently (title, table of contents, page numbers, holding books correctly in relation to light, eyes, posture.)

II. OBJECTIVES OF THE SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND.

A. General Objectives.
Same as for public school, except number six.
To develop the ability to read and interpret, with comprehension, all reading materials and symbols on the first grade level.

B. Specific Objectives.
1. To develop careful handling of Braille books.
2. To develop habits of reading for discovering.
3. To acquire the ability to read and understand printed directions.
4. To develop a vocabulary adequate for reading, with comprehension, primers and first readers.
5. To develop skills and habits for finding materials when they are needed.
6. To encourage the habit of reading for recreational purposes.
7. To increase the rate of reading.
8. To develop good hand and finger movement.
9. To read both orally and silently in thought units.
10. To read without lip movement.
11. To illustrate or dramatize simple stories.
12. To know Braille word contractions and part word signs used in first grade work.
13. To follow three or four simple directions.
14. To use context clues.
15. To develop independence in attacking new words.
16. To read fluently at sight any of the easier selections.
17. To develop skills in finding titles, tables of contents, page numbers, etc.
18. To know phonics:
    a. Phonetic analysis.
        (1) Single consonant in initial position.
        (2) Speech consonants in initial position, ch, sh, th, wh.
        (3) Consonant blends, sk, sn, sm, sp, etc.
    b. Structural analysis, endings s, es, d, ed, ing.
19. Achieve effective eye movement for those using large print.

III. PROCEDURES AND EXPERIENCES.

A. Grouping.
   1. Provide small groups for more effective teaching and learning.
   2. Group according to individual capacities and interests.
      a. The ability to tell similarities and differences.
      b. The ability to match words, objects, symbols, letters, etc.
   3. Keep flexible to allow changes as the need arises.
   4. Work with individual readers who are very slow.

B. Work type reading.
   1. Reading to find what happens.
   2. Finding specific answers.
   3. Finding sentences that describe, illustrate, etc.
   4. Making simple comparisons of yesterday and today.
   5. Telling how the story will end.
   6. Using sentences to rebuild charts.
   7. Finding rhyming words.
   8. Choosing right answers to simple questions on materials read.

C. Oral reading.
   1. Reading for the class to enjoy the story.
   2. Verifying facts.
   3. Promoting attentive listening.
   4. Reading clearly in thought units.
   5. Cultivating pleasing voice and good posture.
   6. Telling stories.
   7. Dramatizing stories.
   8. Noticing new signs and labels.

D. Listening for appreciation.
   1. Simple poetry.
   2. Choral reading.
   3. Records.
   4. Original stories.
   5. Stories of famous people, places, and things.

E. Leisure time reading.
   1. Reading several well chosen books of simple, easy stories.
   2. Reading simple animal stories.

F. Improving techniques of word recognition.
   1. Continuing to increase sight word vocabulary.
   2. Developing the ability to recognize words independently.
   3. Hearing and recognizing rhyming words.
   4. Analyzing phonetically.
      a. Single consonants at beginning of word.
      b. Speech consonants, ch,sh,th,wh, at beginning of words.
      c. Consonant blends, st,pl,br,tw, etc., at the beginning of words.

   5. Analyzing word structure.
      a. Endings -- s,ed,ing, etc.
      b. Length and shape of words.
   6. Identifying context clues.
   7. Encouraging correct pronunciation of words.
   8. Checking thoroughly for word comprehension from exercises found in the teacher's guide book.
   9. Dramatizing the story read with special emphasis on words used in the story.
   10. Giving special attention to words used in describing or talking about pictures.
   11. Developing an awareness of words used in children's discussions and experiences.
   12. Recognizing root words.
   13. Noting little words in big words.
   14. Finding words that mean the same thing (little, small) and words with opposite meaning (up,down, good,bad.)
   15. Recognizing auditory clues--"does it sound right?"

G. Vocabulary building.
   1. Giving different names for the same thing.
   2. Making new words from root words to which ed or ing have been added.
   3. Telling how something would feel or smell.
   4. Making up stories using new words.
   5. Using new words in sentences.
   6. Keeping list of new words.

H. Increasing rate of speed.
   1. Explain pictures and titles in ink print textbooks.
   2. Observe changes in reading interests and increased ease of reading.
   3. Check the number of words read in a given time against the same experience last month.
   4. Use constant repetition in reading phrases and thought units.

I. Improving techniques of Braille reading.
   1. Encourage the handling of Braille books with care and clean hands.
   2. Develop muscular coordination by stringing beads, using peg boards, scissors, constructo sets, and other hand activities.
   3. Discourage sing-song reading in small children.
   4. Find numbered pages.
   5. Teach signs and contractions.
   6. Use supplementary materials made by the teacher.

7. Improving techniques of word recognition, continued.
   5. Analyzing word structure.
      a. Prefixes -- e.g. in, re, etc.
      b. Length and shape of words.
   6. Identifying unknown words.
   7. Determining correct pronunciation of words.
   8. Directing thoroughly for word comprehension from materials found in the teacher's guide book.
   9. Dramatizing the story read with special emphasis on words used in the story.
   10. Giving special attention to words used in describing or relating short stories.
   11. Developing an awareness of words used in multisyllabic discussions and conversations.
   12. Developing story sense.
   13. Making little words in big words.
   14. Reading more than mere the read during (silent, small) and after oral (general, assessment (as, when, procedure))
   15. Developing reading skills- "does it make sense?"

8. Vocabulary building.
   1. Giving different names for the same thing.
   2. Making one word into four words to write on the board from board.
   3. Telling how something would feel or smell.
   4. Moving up (during using new words).
   5. Using new words in sentences.
   6. Making lists of synonyms.

9. Increasing rate of speed.
   1. Reading phrases and sides in the going backward.
   2. Observe changes in reading patterns and increased rate of reading.
   3. Have the number of words read in a given time against the rate of reading last month.
   4. Use reading repetition in reading stories and through words.

10. Improving techniques of English reading.
   1. Recognize the handling of English texts with care and clean hands.
   2. Develop careful coordination by following words, allowing pause, silences, connectors and, and other been analyzing.
   3. Discourage stop-and-go reading in small children.
   4. Read numbered ways.
   5. Read right and continuous.
   6. Use supplementary materials made by the teacher.

J. Mechanics of Braille Reading.
   1. Read from left to right.
   2. Develop good hand position, reading finger slightly slanted, and let wrist rest flat on the book.
   3. Keep hands moving smoothly across the page.
   4. Insist that the child use both hands unless child shows decided preference for using one hand.
   5. Discourage rubbing on one word or contraction.
   6. Insist on good sitting position, both feet flat on the floor.
   7. Read mainly with right index finger, using second and third finger as guides.
   8. Adjust chair to child's comfort.
   9. Find next line with left index finger.
   10. Discourage lip movements when reading silently.

IV. MATERIALS NEEDED.

A. Basal and Supplementary Readers (Primers: 1-3 sets; 1st Rdr. 3-6 sets.)

1. Primers.

SECOND GRADE READING

I. OBJECTIVES OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

A. General Objectives.
(See Kindergarten Readiness and Reading.)

B. Specific Objectives.

1. To show increased ability to read silently easy material, such as finding answers to specific questions.
2. To develop more skill in reading larger groups of words at one eye sweep.
3. To develop further good habits and skills of reading without lip movements, finger movements, and regressive movements.
4. To use the table of contents intelligently.
5. To make use of reading in connection with the day's activities by reading directions, notices, daily news.
6. To read independently very simple material relating to individual or group problems or activities.
7. To get thought and story continuity for reliving and reproducing the thought by telling the most interesting part or the funniest part, or by dramatizing a part.
8. To read orally "thought-groups" of words or phrases so that others will enjoy the selection.
9. To read independently easy material of first and second grade level for increased enjoyment of books.
10. To listen attentively to audience reading either by the teacher or another pupil.
11. To become familiar with simple library usage, such as how to handle books, how to use tables of contents and simple indexes in readers, and how to find easy books on the library shelves.
12. To discover and learn new words by:
    a. Ways suggested in the First Grade.
    b. Looking at the illustrations.
    c. Reading the rest of the sentence.
    d. Seeing known parts of new words.
    e. Phonetic analysis.

II. OBJECTIVES OF THE SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND.

A. General Objectives.
   1. Same as for the public schools except in number six. Add the words "Finger and Hand" to the word "Eye."
   2. To develop a good attitude and interest in reading.

B. Specific Objectives.
   1. Same as for the public schools.
   2. To teach Braille signs and contractions needed at the second grade level.
   3. To develop correct Braille reading habits and techniques.
   4. To develop the ability to choose the most pertinent idea from a group of related ideas.
   5. To foster a love for books.
   6. To help the pupil develop poise and self-confidence in reading Braille.
   7. To contribute to a child's total adjustment through the development of a sense of personal security gained through success in reading.

II. OBJECTIVES OF THE SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND.

A. General Objectives.

1. Same as for the public schools except in manner and (4) the words "Finger and Hand" in the word "Use."
4. To develop a good attitude and interest in reading.

B. Specific Objectives.

1. Same as for the public schools.
2. To teach Braille signs and contractions needed at the second grade level.
3. To develop correct Braille reading habits and techniques.
4. To develop the ability to assume the role of pupil in a group of related idioms.
5. To teach a love for books.
6. To help the pupil develop poise and self-confidence in reading Braille.
7. To contribute to a Braille total adjustment through the development of a sense of personal security which comes success in reading.

III. PROCEDURES AND EXPERIENCES.

A. Classroom Environment.
1. Arrange all physical equipment so that children may be spared the ordeal of running into open doors, tables, and chairs in the classroom.
2. Display in an orderly manner all pertinent materials on the bulletin board for the partially sighted children.
3. Have an orderly arrangement of Braille and print books for easy reference.
4. Keep a room temperature that will be conducive to good working habits.

B. Grouping and Organization.
1. Determine reading ability of each child by
   a. Individual reading from basal text.
   b. Study of individual records if problems arise.
   c. Conferences with previous teachers in special cases.
   d. Standardized and informal tests.
2. Based on childs needs, abilities, interests, and speed.
3. Avoid having more than three groups, if possible.
4. Solve problems by working with each child individually.
5. Change individual children from one group to another as the need arises.

C. Improving Techniques of Braille Reading.
1. Have constant review of signs and contractions.
2. Re-teach signs and contractions on kindergarten and first grade level.
3. Teach new signs and contractions as they appear in new reading material.
4. Give frequent oral and written review exercises.
5. Play games, if available, that will review signs.

D. Improving the Mechanics of Braille Reading.
1. Use correct arm and elbow movements.
2. Use two hands.
3. Get to the next line without losing the place and without skipping a line.
4. Avoid "up" and "down" movements.
5. Insist upon good posture at all times.
6. Avoid unnatural movements of arms, hands, lips; and other reading mannerisms.

III. [illegible] AND [illegible]

A. [illegible]

1. [illegible]
   a. [illegible] equipment [illegible] [illegible]

E. Silent Reading.

1. Comprehension.
   a. Read silently before reading orally.
   b. Refrain from vocalizing (mumbling) and lip reading.
   c. Follow directions, "How do you get from my cottage to yours?", selecting details and answering questions.
   d. Give material that is not too difficult.
   e. Evaluate ideas and see relationships.
   f. Observe unfamiliar words in independent reading.
   g. Develop a feeling of sentence sense.
   h. Find the answer to a list of factual and judgment questions. Make them hard. (Questions should be prepared and discussed before reading is done.)
   i. Promote the ability to tell a story using correct sequence of events.
   j. Find sentences to prove whether statements are true or false.
   k. Provide practice in dramatization.
   l. Read to find phrases that answer WHAT, HOW, WHERE, WHEN, WHY questions.
   m. Develop the ability to predict the outcome of a story.
   n. Develop the ability to remember what is read and to get the meaning of a word through context.
   o. Form generalizations after factual information.
   p. Interpret metaphors and other figures of speech. (Example: John, you are a pig; please do not eat so fast. Lead the group to understand that John is not a pig, but that he is eating like one.)
   q. Give multiple choice exercises as an aid to comprehension.
   r. Reading and listening are based on words and concepts. These concepts must be developed before reading. The blind child needs to have many real experiences to help develop concepts. It is important to have tactual objects available. Field trips to see trains, machinery, animals, fruits, vegetables, etc. are excellent means of giving these concepts.
2. Work-type.
   a. Skim to locate words and simple information.
   b. Develop the ability to find the main idea of a paragraph.
   c. Use simple exercises to help the child read a paragraph to decide which of three groups of words best tell what the paragraph is about.
   d. Develop the ability to re-read the paragraph to get the details supporting the topic.
   e. Develop the ability to find a sentence in a paragraph which does not relate to the subject.
   f. Read My Weekly Reader to provide material for group discussions, etc.

F. Word Meaning.
1. Develop the ability to find words that are spelled differently and have different meanings but have the same pronunciation. Example: Meat, meet, weak, week, bare, bear.
2. Develop the ability to arrange short lists of words alphabetically according to first letter only.
3. Continue building meaningful associations with words through:
   a. Contrast and comprehension.
   b. Classification.
   c. Oral and context clues.
   d. Dramatic play.
   e. Pictorial clues, if enough sight is available; if not, the teacher may explain the picture.
4. Develop an understanding that some words have more than one meaning, and develop skill in selecting the correct meaning to fit the specific context.
5. Increase speaking and listening vocabularies through enriched language experiences.
6. Provide tactile experiences with many objects to clarify word meaning for the blind child. Respect the blind child's descriptive words; this will discourage verbalism.
7. Provide pictures in finding words with the same, or almost the same, and words of opposite meaning.

G. Oral Reading.
1. Develop the ability to modulate the voice.
2. Develop the ability to read clearly and in thought units rather than by individual words.
3. Use aids independently in recognizing unknown words.
4. Recognize and interpret the period and question mark.
5. Promote good reading which helps children tighten hold on reality.
6. Develop appropriate phrasing and rhythm.
7. Promote a quality of voice that will show the author's and the reader's interpretation.
   a. Pitch (high or low.)
   b. Force (loud or soft.)
   c. Rate (fast or slow.)
8. Provide for much oral reading.
   a. For the enjoyment of reader and audience.
   b. To give information (announcements, directions, introductions.)
9. Encourage choral reading experiences.
10. Re-read orally to strengthen study skills in helping to:
    a. Discover the main idea.
    b. Check story sequence.
    c. Recall specific details.
11. Develop correct pronunciation and enunciation.

2. (Oral Reading)
   1. Develop the ability to read words that are spelling irregularly by use of the different reading cues, the use of context, phonics, sight, meaning, syntax, and word form.
   2. Develop the ability to recognize and listen for words in order to hear letter sounds.
   3. Continue building functional vocabulary skills, using various techniques:
      a. Context and dictionary.
      b. Alphabetization.
      c. Field and counter clues.
      d. Phonetic clues.
      e. Structural clues, if memory clues is necessary, it may be the teacher may develop his own.
   4. Develop an understanding that some words have more than one meaning, and develop skill in analyzing the context in order to determine the meaning.
   5. Increase reading and listening vocabulary through reading selections.
   6. Develop varied experiences with word meanings in order to develop the ability to think critically. Develop the ability to distinguish words, ideas and opinions in reading.
   7. Develop analysis of ideas and skill in the use of clues in the news, editorials or speeches.

3. (Oral Reading)
   1. Develop the ability to modulate the voice.
   2. Develop the ability to read sentences so as to convey more than one meaning.
   3. Develop ability to read orally in conversational tones.
   4. Recognize and respond to punctuation.
   5. Develop the ability to read with expression.
   6. Develop the ability to read with a sense of purpose (reading for a reason).
   7. Develop correct pronunciation and diction.
   8. Improve a reading or speaking habit. Use the dictionary to determine pronunciation.
      a. Phonetic (sounds of letters)
      b. Sight (look at word)
      c. Meaning (context clues)
      d. Structure (structure of word)
   9. Develop the voice with variety.
      a. Use the movement of speech and gestures.
      b. Use the voice to convey the meaning (emotions, attitudes, intentions).
   10. Speak in complete sentences.
   11. Develop ability to assume some role, state or feeling in order to:
      a. Develop the role (use).
      b. Gain some awareness.
      c. Assume specific feelings.
   12. Develop correct pronunciation and diction.

12. Develop the ability to recognize and use correctly the common punctuation marks.

H. Reading for Recreation and Pleasure.
1. The first book should be entirely new and on the same level of difficulty as the one last used by the child.
2. Foster interest in reading in many fields.
3. Try to develop a permanent interest in good literature. Help them to love reading in good taste.
4. Present literature with a wide range of subjects (Myths, fairy tales, simple legends, fables, folk tales, poetry, easy fiction, nonsense verse, travel, science, biography, etc.)
5. Read books that will provide a wide range of moods. (Humorous, nonsense, courage, etc.)
6. Provide material that is difficult enough for the best reader and easy enough for the poorest reader.
7. Provide an opportunity for students to read favorite stories to other students (read to first grade and third grade groups.)
8. Read good stories about boys and girls in other lands.
9. Introduce books that tell about animals, birds, and nature.
10. Present problems which pupils will be delighted to solve through independent reading.
11. Read something lovely to children every day. They learn from experience.

I. Improving Word Attack Skills.
1. Phonetic analysis.
   a. The ability to know and use single consonant sounds, blends, and the special two-letter consonant symbols such as sh, ch, th, wh, ing.
   b. The ability to use word form clues and initial and final consonant substitution to attack unfamiliar words.
   c. The ability to mark long and short vowel sounds and vowel sounds controlled by r, l, w, (car, her, fir, saw, salt.)
   d. The ability to use vowel substitutions. Example: hat, hot, cat, cot, bug, bag, leg, lag, etc.
   e. The ability to understand the structure of words. (When two vowels come together the first vowel is usually long and the second is silent.)
   f. The ability to recognize compound words and their known parts. Be able to find little words in big words. Example: Know, father, mother, etc.

2. Structural analysis.
   a. The ability to recognize root words, inflectional endings, suffixes, prefixes, and attacking compound words.
      (1) Review inflectional endings of the first grade: s, 's, ing, and ed.
      (2) Teaching new suffixes in the second grade. Example: ful, er, est, en, y, by, and the prefix "un."
   b. The ability to use the apostrophe correctly.
   c. The ability to arrange words in alphabetical order.

J. Library Techniques.
   1. How to use books.
      a. Have clean hands.
      b. Open books correctly.
      c. Turn pages correctly.
   2. Library manners.
      a. Take turns.
      b. Refrain from talking, whispering, or squirming in chair.
      c. Use PLEASE and THANK YOU to librarian.
      d. Report any damage to books.
      e. Return books free of all markings.
      f. Return books on time.
      g. Enter and leave the library quietly.

FOURTH GRADE READING

I. OBJECTIVES OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

A. General Objectives (Upper Elementary Grades).

1. To provide a wealth of experience through reading widely in various fields of activity.
2. To develop desirable attitudes in reading, and to establish the habit of reading regularly for recreation and pleasure.
3. To increase vocabulary. This includes rapid growth in recognition and meaning vocabulary.
4. To improve mechanics of reading, including speech improvement.
5. To apply techniques appropriate to the reader's purposes.

B. Specific Objectives.

The fourth year should be characterized by rapid progress in fundamental attitudes, habits and skills, and appreciations. Pupils should be expected to make this rapid progress if they are given repeated experiences which are planned to accomplish the following:

1. Increase interest in reading through a variety of rich reading experiences--the reading of the world's greatest stories for children, stories about children in other times and places, stories about great inventors and explorers, informational material in the different curricular fields.
2. Develop the habit of using available reading materials in the school, library, and home.
3. Develop a thoughtful reading attitude through reading for different purposes such as verifying statements, looking for the important points in materials, drawing conclusions from one's reading, relating newly acquired information to past experiences. (All of these are study skills which should be mastered by all regular fourth year pupils.)
4. Increase power in certain reading skills which will be needed as the student reads widely, such as the use of the table of contents, and the index to locate materials.

FOREIGN READ READING

I. OBJECTIVES OF THE READING PROGRAM.

A. General Objectives (Upper Elementary Grades).

1. To provide a wealth of experiences through reading widely in various fields of activity.
2. To develop desirable attitudes in reading, and to establish the habit of reading regularly for information and pleasure.
3. To increase vocabulary. (This is a by-product which is accomplished only through wide reading.)
4. To improve mechanics of reading, including word recognition and.
5. To apply techniques appropriate to the reading purpose.

B. Specific Objectives.

The fourth year should be characterized by rapid progress in fundamental attitudes, habits and ability, and accomplishment. Pupils should be expected to make that rapid progress if they are given repeated experiences which are planned to increase the following:

1. Increase interest in reading through a variety of high reading accomplishments--the reading of the world's wonderful stories and literature, articles about children in other times and places, stories about great inventors and explorers, informational material in the different curricular fields.
2. Develop the habit of using available reading materials in the school, library, and home.
3. Develop a thoughtful reading attitude through reading for different purposes such as verifying statements, looking for the important points in material, drawing conclusions from what is reading, relating newly acquired information to past experiences. (All of these are study skills which should be mastered by all regular fourth year pupils.)
4. Increase power in certain reading skills which will be needed as the students read widely, such as the use of the table of contents, and the index to locate materials.

5. Develop increasing power in the basic reading skills:
   a. Independent recognition of words through context clues and word analysis.
   b. Wider span of recognition in both silent and oral reading.
   c. Comprehension of larger passages as they are read.
   d. Expansion of vocabulary meanings.
6. Improve the efficiency of silent reading by increasing the rate of reading with an accompanying accuracy of comprehension. This should be done gradually and with assurance of progress from day to day.
7. Develop desirable standards as involved in good oral reading, both as reader and listener.
8. Cultivate desirable habits in the use and care of books and other materials used in reading.

II. OBJECTIVES OF THE SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND.

A. General Objectives.
To help each child acquire word-learning and language skills needed for independent reading in all areas of the fourth grade curriculum.

B. Specific Objectives.
1. To stimulate each child in developing specific reading skills in all areas of his reading.
2. To develop the ability to differentiate similar meaningful sounds.
3. To challenge the child's whole mind.
4. To do a good job of guided reading each day with the hope that it will contribute to the child's total educational growth.
5. To develop the ability to reproduce vocally meaningful sounds.
6. To satisfy the needs of the child by encouraging him to read ahead.
7. To make use of reading as a means of extending and enriching experiences.
8. To acquire a broad vocabulary through a reading program.
9. To learn the difference between Braille opposites such as: e and i, d and f, h and j, and Braille words, of and with.
10. To increase speed in reading.

II. OBJECTIVES OF THE COURSE (ON THE BOARD).

A. Course in Business.
To help each student acquire such knowledge and understanding and develop the attitudes and skills in all areas of the fourth grade curriculum.

B. Specific Objectives.
1. To strengthen each student's understanding of basic reading skills in all areas of the curriculum.
2. To develop the ability to differentiate [illegible] meanings.
3. To develop the ability to [illegible].
4. To develop [illegible] in the English [illegible] process.
5. To develop the ability to [illegible].
6. To [illegible] in the English [illegible] process.
7. To develop the ability to [illegible] in a [illegible] environment.
8. To develop a good [illegible] attitude [illegible].
9. To develop the attitudes [illegible] and [illegible].
10. To develop [illegible] in [illegible].

III. PROCEDURES AND EXPERIENCES.

A. Grouping.
   1. Keep flexible to meet individual needs.
   2. Examine reading tests previously given.
   3. Use former teachers' evaluation from cumulative record.
   4. Note detailed analysis of various skills on reading tests. Example: standardized, My Weekly Reader and teacher's tests.
   5. Have a daily period of group and individual reading in basal texts.
   6. Bring together children who need work on the same skills.

B. Silent reading.
   1. Dictionary study for word meaning.
   2. Study word analyses, syllables, accent marks, and consonant sounds.
   3. Workbook exercises prepared by the teacher.
   4. Comparing and contrasting.
   5. Group discussions from materials in My Weekly Reader and books.

C. Work-type reading.
   1. Study table of contents and index.
   2. Learn to take notes on materials read.
   3. Study paragraphs to get central thought.
   4. Study information given in Braille or print encyclopedia (for students in upper quartile.)
   5. Find details by skimming.
   6. Pick out characters, places, events, and sequences.
   7. Interpret and organize two-point outline: main ideas and their sub-topics.
   8. Visualize characters from clues planted in a story.

D. Use of the dictionary.
   1. To develop skills that will carry over in:
      a. Good study habits.
      b. Use of many reference books.
      c. Daily use of the dictionary.
      d. Intelligent use of the glossary, charts, indexes, table of contents and title pages.
   2. To study symbols, contractions, and word signs in Braille to put words in alphabetical order.
   3. To look up unfamiliar words for pronunciation and spelling in glossary, pocket dictionary, and Webster's Students Dictionary.
   4. To become acquainted with pronunciation symbols.
   5. To use syllabication in spelling and reading.
   6. To learn guide words for easier location of specific words.
   7. To learn to alphabetize by first, second, and third letters of the word, by writing spelling words in such order.
   8. To study synonyms, antonyms, and homonyms.

III. PROCEDURE AND CONSIDERATIONS.

A. Ordering

1. Know libraries to meet immediate needs.
2. Provide flexible [illegible] procedure.
3. Use [illegible] [illegible] from [illegible]
4. [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible]
5. Provide [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

E. Oral reading.
   1. Scanning for given information.
   2. Research reading.
   3. Oral reading in other basal texts.
   4. Telling about vicarious experiences.
   5. Auditory perception of consonant sounds.
   6. Development of a good reading voice for expressive reading.

F. Functional reading.
   1. Reading related materials.
   2. Research reading.
   3. Silent and oral reading in health, geography, science, arithmetic, etc.
   4. Reading Brailled charts, maps, graphs, etc.
   5. Reading in the encyclopedia (advanced readers only.)

G. Leisure time reading.
   1. Library books brought to class by teacher and pupils.
   2. Interesting stories or news print prepared by teacher or students.
   3. Stories written in Braille or print.
   4. Poetry, fables, humorus stories, jokes, adventure, and animal stories.

H. Listening for appreciation.
   1. Some literary stories above the reading level of the group.
   2. Travel and holiday stories.
   3. Easy-to-interpret poetry.
   4. Stories read by teacher or good student readers.
   5. Talking books.
   6. Dramatization.

I. Improving word recognition techniques.
   1. Using the glossary.
   2. Studying accented syllables.
   3. Improving phonetic skills.
   4. Directing a study of suffixes and prefixes.
   5. Learning location skills by using the dictionary.
   6. Learning to select pertinent meanings.
   7. Learning pronunciation skills from the dictionary.
   8. Recognizing multiple meanings of words.
   9. Having the child to sound words ending in ing, d, and t and good use of long and short vowels.
   10. Studying new words in the context for correct meaning.

J. Vocabulary building.
   1. Study root words.
   2. Learn to make new words from root words by adding s, ed, ing, etc.
   3. Study the various meanings of words.
   4. Use the dictionary to get correct meanings of words.
   5. Take field trips pertaining to previous lessons.
   6. Collect pictures, film strips, and stories to be discussed by the group.
   7. Collect local expressions and figures of speech.
   8. Interpret the author's mood as he describes various experiences.

K. Increasing rate of speed.
   1. Have reading periods in which the child chooses his own reading material. The materials should be approved and acceptable.
   2. Note the number of Braille signs and contractions read in a given time.
   3. Note hand movement in reading Braille.
   4. Note tactual perception.
   5. Compare reading speed now with previous reading speed tests.
   6. Compare individual's reading speed with others in group.
   7. Note the amount of reading covered in a given period of time.

L. Improving techniques of Braille reading.
   1. Auditory perception.
      a. The ability to differentiate similar meaningful sounds.
      b. The ability to reproduce vocally meaningful sounds.
   2. Adjustment of the rate of oral reading, emphasis, and phrasing to the nature of the selection.
   3. Provision for drills on word signs and contractions.
   4. Establishment of good seating habits.
   5. Provision for an abundance of selected reading materials in Braille on the child's reading level.

M. Mechanics.
   1. Use both hands with good movements.
   2. Avoid up and down, back and forth movements.
   3. Insist on good reading posture.

FIFTH GRADE READING

I. OBJECTIVES OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

A. General Objectives.
(See the Fourth Grade.)

B. Specific Objectives.

1. To develop the habit of using a wide variety of reading material in studying a problem or in participating in units of work.
2. To develop the ability to find needed facts independently through using many books and references, and to tie together facts from history, science, geography, and other subjects.
3. To appreciate the value of reading in the study of other subjects.
4. To read rapidly and accurately for key thoughts and begin the use of other simple techniques as forms for outlining, making summaries, etc.
5. To enjoy literature, prose and poetry; and to begin to make use of, through sharing with others, all types (current events, etc.) of reading experiences.

II. OBJECTIVES OF THE SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND.

A. General Objectives.
The objectives of the School for the Blind should be the same as for the public schools.

B. Specific Objectives.
1. To develop the ability to read and understand the meaning of words in the basal text and related materials.
2. To promote effective oral reading with emphasis on:
   a. Ease.
   b. Fluency.
   c. Good posture.
   d. Rhythm.
   e. Voice control.
   f. Details.
   g. Critical analysis.
   h. Proving a point.
3. To develop independence in identifying new Braille words through:
   a. Phonetic analysis.
   b. Structural analysis.

III. PROCEDURES AND EXPERIENCES

A. Grouping.
   1. Testing.
      a. During the first two or three weeks of school, the teacher should do a considerable amount of testing and close observing to gather data and information on the reading status of each child in the group.
      b. Standardized tests should be used to discover the silent and oral reading ability of each child and his skill in word identification and recognition.
   2. By observing each child's silent reading and by listening carefully to his oral reading, the teacher should be able to judge the child's general silent and oral reading level, and should be able to make groupings according to abilities, interests, and capabilities.
   3. Informal talks with each child should help the teacher discover topics which will be of interest in the child's reading.
   4. By examining the school records of each child, the teacher will become acquainted with such factors as intelligence, the degree of visual limitations, auditory defects, home conditions, general health, and any other condition which might affect the child's health and work habits.

B. Providing a flexible program for these general types of reading instruction:
   1. Teaching selections in the basic readers.
   2. Providing training in reading for various purposes.
   3. Establishing independence in identifying strange words.
   4. Developing independence in coping with word meaning difficulties.
   5. Improving child's reading through skillful teaching of various school subjects.
   6. Measuring achievement.
